

Ben Norris
Senior Counsel
American Petroleum Institute

Ben serves as Senior Counsel in API's Office of the Chief Legal Officer, where he advises the Institute and its members on state and federal legislative, regulatory, and litigation matters affecting the oil and gas upstream sector. His portfolio includes hydraulic fracturing, upstream environmental issues, liquefied natural gas and gas markets, international trade and cybersecurity. He also advises the Institute on political law, state and local ballot measure campaigns and campaign finance issues.

Prior to joining API in 2011, Ben was an associate in the energy and environmental practice group at a Washington, DC law firm. While at the firm he represented one of the principal defendants in the Deepwater Horizon incident and oil spill before multiple Congressional committees, the Presidential Oil Spill Commission, and in the multi-district litigation in New Orleans, LA. He also represented clients before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the Department of State, and the U.S. Congress.

Before attending law school, Ben worked as a speechwriter for Secretary of the Navy Gordon R. England at the Pentagon and in the natural gas markets reporting division of a major industry trade publication.

Ben received a BA in Political Science and English from Rice University in Houston, TX, and a JD from Washington University in St. Louis, MO, where he served as Articles Editor of the Washington University Law Review.