

Economist with over 25 years experience in the electricity industry. Focused on the low carbon transformation with emphasis on transportation electrification and renewable energy. Helps public and private sector clients craft data-driven, actionable policies and strategies. Previously served on the California Public Utilities Commission and taught economics at UC Berkeley's Goldman School of Public Policy.