

Loni Silva is an Attorney in the Office of the General Counsel at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Prior to this role, Silva was a legal intern at the Department of the Interior and an Environmental Law Research Assistant at The George Washington University Law School. Silva received a BA from Elmira College, an MA from Bosphorus University, and a J.D. from The George Washington University Law School.